Closed Captioning

Closed Captioning displays text of the audio portion of a television program as it occurs, including background sounds and speaker changes. Closed Captioning allows hard of hearing viewers to enjoy video. Subtitles are not considered closed captioning. Subtitles are text for viewers that can't understand the dialog, such as a foreign language.

Closed Captioning can be turned on or off through the settings menu on your television. Bernard Telephone customers can display or remove captioning with the closed captioning button on their video remote. Please see the examples shown on the right.
