Is WiFi the same as the Internet?

WiFi is built into most computers and mobile devices. WiFi allows mobile devices to communicate with other mobile devices via radio waves. A wireless router creates a network with other devices within the range of the router's radio waves. WiFi can be used to connect printers, gaming consoles, security cameras and other WiFi enabled devices within a network.

The internet is a globally connected network of computers and other electronic devices. These internet connections make it possible to access almost any information or to communicate with anyone else in the world. Connecting a computer to the internet it is known as "going online". The internet provides the ability to communicate (email and social media), shop on-line (e-commerce), entertainment (gaming and streaming) and so much more.

While the two terms are often used interchangeably they are not the same. You can connect to the internet without WiFi but you can not use WiFi with out connecting to the internet.

Snow Removal and Fiber Pedestals

A reminder to use caution when moving snow in the area of a pedestal. We acknowledge damage is unintentional in most cases.

However, same as a fiber cut, the damage will be assessed and the responsible party will be billed for the repairs.

Congratulations

to this month's winner,

GUY STODDARD

He will receive a $10 credit on his next bill.

Winners are randomly drawn and all customers are eligible.
